JULES MASSENET
(1842-1912)

Born in Montaud, Hérault, Languedoc-Roussillon. He was initially taught piano by his mother and went on to the Paris Conservatory where he studied piano with Adolphe-Francois Laurent, harmony with Henri Reber and counterpoint with Ambroise Thomas. To support himself during his studies, he worked as timpanist for six years at the Théâtre Lyrique in Paris. He would go on to become one of France’s greatest composers of opera. After military service in the Franco-Prussian War, he worked as professor of composition at the Paris Conservatory. In addition, he composed ballets, incidental music, orchestral, instrumental, choral and vocal works.

MICHEL MERLET
(b. 1939)

Born in Saint-Brieuc, Côtes-d’Armor department, Brittany. He studied composition at the Paris Conservatory with Tony Aubin, and musical analysis with Olivier Messiaen. He then taught at this school where he succeeded Yvonne Drsordes as teacher of fugue. Afterwards, he taught in China and Japan and is currently professor of composition at the Ecole Normale de Musique in Paris and at the Schola Cantorum de Paris. He has composed orchestral, chamber and instrumental works, including a Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra, Op. 40 and Concert-Quarto, for Violin and String Orchestra.

OLIVIER MESSIAEN
(1908-1992)

Born in Avignon into an intellectual family. He entered the Paris Conservatory at the age of 11 and received instructions from Jean and Noël Gallon, Marcel Dupré, Maurice Emmanuel and Paul Dukas. He took teaching positions at the Ecole Normale de Musique and the Schola Cantorum and was one of the co-founders of La Jeune France. Taken prisoner during World War II, he resumed his academic and compositional activities after the Liberation. He is considered one of the greatest modern French composers and his original and varied works have received worldwide acclaim. These include his sole opera “St. François d’Assise,” and his many orchestral, chamber, keyboard and vocal works many of which are infused with the composer’s devout Catholicism. His major orchestral works include the Turangalîla-Symphonie, L’Ascension, Chronocromie, Couleurs de la Cité Céleste and Des Canyons aux Étoiles.

GEORGES MIGOT
(1891-1976)

Born in Levallois, a suburb of Paris. He learned the piano as a child and later studied at the Paris Conservatory with Charles-Marie Widor for composition, Andre Gedalge for counterpoint, Maurice Emmanuel for music history, Vincent d'Indy for orchestration and Eugene Gigout and Alexandre Guilmant for organ. An all around artist, he was a painter and poet as well as a composer. His very large catalogue includes operas, orchestral (13 Symphonies), chamber, instrumental, vocal and choral works. Some of his other concertante works are Dialogue for Piano and Orchestra (1922-5), Dialogue for Piano and Orchestra (1922-6), Suite for Violin and Orchestra (1924), Suite for Piano and Orchestra (1927), Suite en Concert for Harp and Orchestra (1928) and Le Jungle for Organ and Orchestra (1928).

MARCEL MIHALOVICI
(1898-1985)

Born in Bucharest, Romania. Initially studying composition with Dimitrie Cuclin in Bucharest, on Georges Enescu's recommendation he moved to Paris at age 21 to study composition with Vincent d'Indy at the Schola Cantorum. He stayed permanently, and with Darius Milhaud and other composers, founded the École de Paris, an organization for immigrant composers to promote and perform their works. He later taught at the Schola Cantorum. An extremely prolific composer, his catalogue includes most genres from opera to solo instrumental pieces. Among his concertante works are Concerto Quasi una Fantasia for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 33 (1930), Toccata for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 44 (1938, rev. 1940), Périples for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 93 (1967) and Variantes for Horn and Orchestra, Op. 96 (1969).

DARIUS MILHAUD
(1892-1974)

Born in Marseille. He took violin lessons as a child before entering the Paris Conservatory where his teachers were Xavier Leroux, Charles-Marie Widor, André Gedalge and Vincent d'Indy. He spent some years in the diplomatic corps and traveled abroad where he absorbed various musical influences and spent the World War II years as an exile in America. As one of "Les Six," he was considered in the forefront of French musical modernism. Perhaps one of the most prolific of 20th century composers with hundreds of works in his catalogue in every conceivable genre, his frequently performed pieces are few. The following concertante have not been recorded: Poème sur un Cantique de Camargue for piano and orchestra, Op. 13 (1913), Suite Concertante for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 278a (arr. of Concerto for Marimba, Vibraphone and Orchestra) (1952), Suite for 2 Pianos and Orchestra, Op. 300 (1950), Concert de Chambre for Piano and Chamber Orchestra, Op. 389 (1961), Music for Boston for Violin and Chamber Orchestra, Op. 414 (1965), Concerto for Flute, Violin and Orchestra, Op. 197 (1938-9), Symphonie Concertante for Bassoon, Horn, Trumpet, Double Bass and Orchestra, Op. 376 (1959) and Concerto for Harpsichord and Orchestra, Op. 407 (1964) and Stanford Sérénade for Oboe and 11 Instruments, Op. 430 (1969).

ROBERT PLANEL
(1908-1994)

Born in Montelimar, Drôme, Rhône-Alpes, the son of composer Alphonse Planel (1869-1947). He was taught the violin by René Chédécal, the first violinist of the Opéra de Paris and later studied at the Paris Conservatory with Firmin Touche for violin, Jean Gallon for harmony, Georges Caussade for counterpoint and Henri Büsser and Paul Vidal for composition. As inspector general of the City of Paris, he devoted himself to the promotion of music education. He composed a small body of works in various genres including a Concertino for Cello and Piano with Orchestra "Caprice" (1937).

FRANCIS POULENC
(1899-1963)

Born in Paris. His formal musical training began with piano lessons from Ricardo Viñes. He entered the circle of musicians around Erik Satie and, after service in World War I, had composition lessons from Charles Koechlin. He was part of the informal musical group "Les Six" and was a very accomplished pianist. As a composer he is the last in the line of French composers whose music is enjoyed by the greater musical public. His extensive catalogue encompasses most genres from opera to solo instrumental pieces.

HENRIETTE RENIÉ
(1875-1956)

Born in Paris. She studied the harp at the Paris Conservatory with Alphonse Hasselmans. At the Conservatory, her professors, Théodore Dubois, Ambroise Thomas, and Jules Massenet, all encouraged her to compose. While still a child, she began teaching the harp and gave performances all around France. She became an eminent teacher and her pupils included Marcel Grandjany. She composed solo pieces for the harp as well as chamber works that included a harp.

(1869-1937)

Born in Toucoing, Nord-Pas-de-Calais. After a naval career he began the serious study of music in his mid-twenties with Eugène Gigout before entering the Schola Cantorum for instruction by Vincent d'Indy, who gave him a job on the staff. As instructor of counterpoint, some of his pupils were Erik Satie, Paul Le Flem and Edgard Varèse. For the theater his most important works are the opera "Padmôvatî," the ballets "Bacchus et Ariane," "Le Festin de l'Araignée" and "Aenéas" and the incidental music to "Le Marchand de Sable qui Passe" and his 4 Symphonies have been often recorded.

FLORENT SCHMITT
(1870-1958)

Born in Blâmont, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Lorraine. After initial studies at the Nancy Conservatory, he entered the Paris Conservatory where his teachers were Théodore Dubois, Albert Lavignac, André Gédalge, Jules Massenet and Gabriel Fauré, the last two for composition. He was an academic (head of the Lyons Conservatory) and influential music critic but most of all a very prolific composer who produced music to the very end of his long life. His enormous catalogue does include some stage music, notably ballets and incidental music, but most of his work is for orchestra, chamber groups, solo instruments and voices. His other unrecorded concertante work is Scherzo Vif for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 59 (1910).
