

FRENCH SYMPHONIES
From the Nineteenth Century To The Present

A Discography Of CDs And LPs
Prepared by Michael Herman

NICOLAS BACRI
(b. 1961)

Born in Paris. He began piano lessons at the age of seven and continued with the study of harmony, counterpoint, analysis and composition as a teenager with Françoise Gangloff-Levéchin, Christian Manen and Louis Saguer. He then entered the Paris Conservatory where he studied with a number of composers including Claude Ballif, Marius Constant, Serge Nigg, and Michel Philippot. He attended the French Academy in Rome and after returning to Paris, he worked as head of chamber music for Radio France. He has since concentrated on composing. He has composed orchestral, chamber, instrumental, vocal and choral works. His unrecorded Symphonies are: Nos. 1, Op. 11 (1983-4), 2, Op. 22 (1986-8), 3, Op. 33 "Sinfonia da Requiem" (1988-94) and 5, Op. 55 "Concerto for Orchestra" (1996-7). There is also a Sinfonietta for String Orchestra, Op. 72 (2001) and a Sinfonia Concertante for Orchestra, Op. 83a (1995-96/rév.2006).

GEORGES BIZET
(1838-1875)

Born in Paris into a highly musical family. His musical gifts were recognized very early on and he entered the Paris Conservatory at the age of 9. There he was taught by Antoine- François Marmontel, Pierre-Joseph-Guillaume Zimmermann, François Benoist and Jacques Fromental Halévy. The last named was his composition teacher who later became his father-in-law. Bizet's abbreviated life did not deny him immortality as he composed the most famous and often performed of French operas, "Carmen" as well as several other operas such as "Les Pêcheurs de Perles" and the incidental music to the play "L'Arlésienne" from which 2 suites have always been mainstays of the orchestral repertoire. His Symphony in C major, written when he was 17, lay unperformed in the archives of the Paris Conservatory until 1933 and has since become one of the most performed of French symphonies.

(1910-1999)

Born in Paris. He studied composition with Nadia Boulanger, Claude Delvincourt and Henri Büsser as well as conducting with Pierre Monteux and Willem Mengelberg. However his prime focus was on musicology and music history and these are the fields that brought him great recognition. At various times he taught at the Paris Conservatory, the University of Paris and the Schola Cantorum. He wrote prolifically on musical subjects but found the time to compose 2 operas, a ballet, 2 Symphonies and various other works. His Symphony No. 2 appeared in 1984.

JACQUES CHARPENTIER
(b. 1933)

Born in Paris. He lived in Calcutta and Bombay and made a study of Indian music. On his return to France, he attended the Paris Conservatory where Tony Aubin was his composition teacher and Olivier Messiaen taught him theory. He worked as an organist and served as chief inspector of music for the Ministry of Cultural Affairs. His compositions, many influenced by his sojourn in India, cover the fields of ballet, orchestral, chamber, instrumental and vocal music. His orchestral catalogue includes 7 Symphonies: the unrecorded ones are No. 2 ("Sinfonia Sacra pour le Jour de Pâques" for Strings, 1965), No. 4 ("Brasil," 1975), No. 5 ("Et l'Imaginaire se Mit à Danser," 1977) and No. 7 (1985) and more than 10 Concertos and Concertinos for diverse instruments.

ERNEST CHAUSSON
(1855-1899)

Born in Paris. He studied under Jules Massenet at the Paris Conservatory but also took private composition lessons with César Franck. Coming from a wealthy family, he could devote his musical activities completely to composing. Like many other French composers of his generation, he fell under the spell of Richard Wagner as evidenced by his opera "Le Roi Arthus." His early death cut off a major French voice but he did complete a small group of important chamber works as well as the orchestral works "Poème" for Violin and Orchestra, "Poème de l'Amour et de la Mer" for Soprano and Orchestra and the symphonic poems "Viviane" and "Soir de Fête." Sketches exist of a Second Symphony that he was working on at the time of his death.

LUIGI CHERUBINI
(1760-1842)

Born in Florence. His musical education (initially by his father) as well as his composing began at a very early age. His formal training in composition came from Bartolomeo and Alessandro Felici and Giuseppe Sarti. From 1796 onwards Paris became his place of residence and his brilliant career placed him in the forefront of French musical life. His operas were particularly important in their day and influenced an entire generation of French opera composers. He became the head of the Paris Conservatory and was honored by his adoptive homeland as a Chevalier de la Légion d'Honneur and as Membre de l'Académie des Beaux-Arts. His only Symphony, strongly influenced by Mozart and Haydn, had been forgotten for more than a century until its revival in 1935.

HENRI COLLET (1885-1951)

Born in Paris. He studied music initially in Paris with Henri Thibaud but continued his musical education in Spain with Federico Olmeda. An avid hispanophile, he moved to Spain and wrote extensively about its music and literature. He is most famous for coining the name "Les Six" to describe the group of composers that included Auric, Durey, Honegger, Milhaud, Poulenc and Tailleferre. His main musical activity was criticism but he composed a number of orchestral works with Spanish themes including the Symphony listed below as well as the symphonic poem "El Escorial," "Gitanerias" and "Rhapsodie Castillane" for Viola and Orchestra.

MARIUS CONSTANT (1925-2004)

Born in Bucharest, Romania. He studied first at that city's Conservatory before settling in Paris in 1946 where he studied privately with Arthur Honegger and took courses at the Paris Conservatory with Tony Aubin, Nadia Boulanger and Olivier Messiaen. At the École Normale de Musique, Jean Fournet was his conducting teacher and conducting would constitute a significant portion of his musical career. He held various conducting positions and also taught both at the Paris Conservatory and in America. He was a very prolific composer producing operas, ballets and works in every usual genre. His Symphony No. 2 for Winds (1978) has not been recorded.

Born in Paris, his original surname was Lesur. He studied at the Paris Conservatory where his teachers were Jean Gallon and Georges Caussade for harmony and fugue and Charles Tournemire for organ and composition. Was a co-founder with Yves Baudrier, Andre Jolivet and Olivier Messiaen of La Jeune France and was an instructor and later director of the Schola Cantorum. He wrote several operas, notably "Andrea del Sarto," ballets and a considerable amount of orchestral, chamber, instrumental and vocal works. His second work in symphonic form was entitled "Symphonie d' Ombre et de Lumière" (1964) and some other orchestral works were the symphonic poem "Andrea del Sarto," "Passacaille" for Piano and Strings and "Fantaisie" for Cello and Orchestra.

CLAUDE DEBUSSY

Born in Saint-Germain-en-Laye (Parisian suburbs). Entering the Paris Conservatory at the age of 10, he studied piano with Antoine-François Marmontel and harmony under Albert Lavignac with a few lessons from César Franck and Ernest Guiraud. Travels across Europe under the patronage of Mme. Nazhdeza von Meck landed him in Moscow where he became acquainted with the music of Tchaikovsky and Mussorgsky. Visits to Bayreuth exposed him to the music of Richard Wagner and visiting gamelan musicians from Java left an enduring impression. His musical career blossomed early and steadily and he became, according to most opinions, the pre-eminent French composer excelling in all genres from his opera "Pelleas et Melisande" to his sui generis body of piano music. His orchestral masterpieces include "Prélude à l'Après-midi d'un Faune," "La Mer," "Trois Nocturnes" and "Images pour Orchestre" The work listed below is Debussy's only work called a "symphony" though some consider "La Mer" a symphony in all but name.

 (b. 1936)

Born in Paris. He studied at the Paris Conservatory with Louis Fourestier, Georges Dandelot, Yvonne Desportes, Jean Rivier, Darius Milhaud and Olivier Messiaen and continued his musical education with Karlheinz Stockhausen and Henri Pousseur in Cologne as well as a conducting course with Pierre Boulez. He worked as a conductor and an administrator under Marcel Landowski in various posts around France. He produced a large catalogue of works for orchestra, various instrumental combinations and voice. He did not compose in classical forms so the Sinfonietta is exceptional among his works.

DÉSIRÉ DONDEYNE
(b. 1921)

Born in Laon, Aisne Department. He studied at the Lille and Paris Conservatories. He worked as a clarinetist in the French Air Force Band before becoming the long time conductor of Musique des Gardiens de la Paix, France's most prestigious wind orchestra. He was appointed to board of the French Ministry of Culture and was the director of the conservatory of Issy-les-Moulineaux. As a composer he produced a large amount of works mostly for band but also chamber music and an orchestral version of his Symphonie des Souvenirs (1994). Other wind orchestra Symphonies include Symphonia Sacra, Symphonie des Saisons and Symphonie Fidélité.

THÉODORE DUBOIS
(1837-1924)

Born in Rosnay, Marne, Île-de-France, Champagne-Ardenne. He studied first under Louis Fanart and later at the Paris Conservatory under Ambroise Thomas. A few years after winning the Prix de Rome, he became choirmaster at the Church of the Madeleine. Later, he took over from César Franck as choirmaster at the Basilica of Sainte-Clotilde and, afterwards, succeeded Camille Saint-Saëns as organist of the Church of the Madeleine. He also taught at the Paris Conservatory. He composed operas, ballets, orchestral, chamber, instrumental and vocal works. He also composed a Symphony No.3 in A major (pub.1923).

PAUL DUKAS
(1865-1935)

Born in Paris. He attended the Paris Conservatory and was taught harmony by Théodore Dubois and composition by Ernest Guiraud. He worked as a music critic before securing a teaching position at the Paris Conservatory where he taught composition to Maurice Duruflé and Olivier Messiaen among many others. He did not compose prolifically and was extremely fastidious about which of his works he allowed to appear. His opera "Ariane et Barbe-Bleue" and ballet "La Péri" and especially his symphonic scherzo "L'Apprenti Sorcier" have kept his name alive. His remaining orchestral works are the Symphony and 3 Concert Overtures. It is believed that he had completed a Second Symphony but destroyed it shortly before his death.

MARCEL DUPRÉ (1886-1971)

Born in Rouen the son of a church organist and his first teacher. He studied privately with Alexandre Guilmant before entering the Paris Conservatory for further instruction from Guilmant as well as Louis-Joseph Diemer and Louis Vierne. He achieved great fame in his triple musical career as organist, composer and teacher. He taught and eventually headed the Paris Conservatory and succeeded Widor as organist of St. Sulpice. Most of his compositions, including 2 Symphonies, were for solo organ but he wrote for other forces as well including chamber and choral works and a Concerto and "Cortège et Litanie" for Organ and Orchestra.

GABRIEL FAURÉ
(1845-1924)

Born in Pamiers, Ariège. His first teacher was Louis Niedermeyer but it was Saint-Saëns who gave him the bulk of his compositional grounding. He enjoyed long and distinguished careers as both composer and teacher whose roster of eminent students included Ravel, Koechlin, Florent Schmitt and Nadia Boulanger. His catalogue of compositions was vast and included everything from opera to solo instrumental works with a particular aptitude for chamber and choral music. The orchestral music that keeps his name in the active repertoire are the suites "Masques et Bergamasques.," "Pélleas et Mélisande" and "Dolly" as well as a Pavane and the Ballade for Piano and Orchestra. The piece listed here was from a 3 movement work variously entitled "Première Symphonie" or "Suite d'Orchestre." His lesser-known but larger scale works include an unpublished Symphony in D minor (1886) and a Violin Concerto.

CÉSAR FRANCK
(1822-1890)

Born in Liège, Belgium. A child prodigy, he moved to Paris with his family in 1835 and he entered the Paris Conservatory two years later where his teachers were Pierre-Joseph-Guillaume Zimmermann, François Benoist and Aimé-Ambroise-Simon Leborne. After a brief return to Belgium, he settled permanently in Paris in 1843 and became one of the leading figures in French music. As an eminent organist and teacher, he tutored at the Paris Conservatory a host of future important composers including D'Indy, Chausson, Ropartz and Pierné. He composed in various genres ranging from opera to solo instrumental works. His other major orchestral works were the Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra and the symphonic poems "Psyché" (with chorus), "Les Djinns", "Les Éolides" and "Le Chasseur Maudit." His Symphony in D minor served as the model for numerous symphonies that followed in its wake and gave the symphonic form a prominence in France that it did not possess previously.

PHILIPPE GAUBERT (1879 - 1941)

Born in Cahors, Lot Département. He studied the flute with Paul Taffanel at first privately and then at Paris Conservatory and also had composition instructions from Charles Lenepveu and harmony lessons from Raoul Pugno and Xavier Leroux. He joined the staff of the Paris Conservatory and was highly-regarded as a flautist but achieved his greatest fame as a conductor and eventually became the music director of the orchestras of both the Paris Opera and the Paris Conservatory. He did not compose prolifically but did produce the opera "Naïla," several ballets and, for orchestra, the symphonic poems "Les Chants de la Mer" and "Au Pays Basques," Concerto for Orchestra and a Violin Concerto.

Symphony in F major (1935-6)

Marc Soustrot/Orchestre Philharmonique du Luxembourg
(+ Les Chants de la Mer and Concerto in F)

BENJAMIN GODARD (1849-1895)

Born in Paris. He studied the violin with Richard Hammer and Henri Vieuxtemps and composition at the Paris Conservatory with Napoléon Henri Reber. He composed operas, orchestral, chamber, instrumental and vocal works. The Berceuse from his opera "Jocelyn" has kept his name alive. He also wrote: Symphonie Dramatique for Soloists, Chorus and Orchestra, Op.39 "Le Tasse," (1878), Symphonie-Ballet, Op. 60 (1882), and Symphonie Légendaire, Op. 99 (1880-85).

FRANÇOIS-JOSEPH GOSSEC
(1734-1829)

Born in Vergnies, in Hainaut (France then, now Belgium). Moving to Paris in 1751, he became a student of the great French baroque composer Jean-Philippe Rameau. He worked as conductor and soon began turning out the first of what would eventually be his more than 50 Symphonies. As a conductor he helped promote the revival of instrumental music in a France that was almost totally dominated by opera though he also composed operas himself that were quite successful. He was the director of the École Royale de Chant an institution that evolved into the Paris Conservatory and became a Membre de l'Académie des Beaux-Arts. Listed below are recordings of the only Gossec Symphony composed in the 19th century.

IDA GOTKOVSKY
(b. 1933)

Born in Calais the daughter of violinist Jacques Gotkovsky. She studied at the Paris Conservatory with Tony Aubin and Nadia Boulanger and is currently a professor of theory at that school. Her compositions cover most genres with a specialty in music for wind instruments. In addition to those listed below, her other Symphonies are: Symphonie pour Cordes et Percussion (1957), Symphonie pour Quatre-vingt Instruments à Vent (1960), Symphonie pour Orgue et Orchestre d'Harmonie (1982), "Golden Symphonie" pour 15 Saxophones (1989) and "Symphonie à la Jeunesse" (1993). She also composed a number of Concertos for wind and brass instruments.

ÉMILE GOUÉ
(1904-1946)

Born in Chateauroux, Indre department. He was educated as a scientist and mathematician, but was also drawn to music. Having been encouraged by Albert Roussel, he completed his musical studies under the direction of Charles Koechlin. As a prisoner of war during World War II, he remained musically active. However, his suffering during internment led to his premature death soon after the end of the war. He composed orchestral, chamber, piano and vocal works, including Symphony No. 1 in G minor "Classique" (1925-37).

Symphony No. 2 in A major for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 39 (1943)

Tony Aubin/Max Roques (violin)/Orchestra Radio Symphony Paris (rec. 1958)
(+ Ballade on a Poem by Emily Brontë)
AZUR CLASSICAL AZC135 (2016)

CHARLES GOUNOD
(1818-1893)

Born in St. Cloud. His first teacher of music was his mother and he went on to the Paris Conservatory where he studied under Jaalévy, Jean François Le Sueur and Ferdinando Paër. He achieved immortality with his operas "Faust" and "Roméo et Juliette" and wrote several other operas and large-scale sacred choral works. Besides these Symphonies, he wrote little else of significance for orchestra (only the "Marche Funèbre pour une Marionette" is ever revived) or other non-vocal genres.

LOUIS THÉODORE GOUVY
(1819-1898)

Born in Goffontaine, Alsace (then under Prussian rule), to Francophone parents. Unable to attend the Paris Conservatory, he studied music privately in both Paris and Berlin, a prominent teacher being Antoine Elwart. He composed prolifically in various genres with the majority of his output being for instrumental forces. This preference eventually made him resettle in Germany as the French were much more interested in works for the voice, particularly operas. He wrote a total of 7 Symphonies, mostly during the 1850's.

ALEXANDRE GUILMANT
(1837-1911)

Born in Boulogne. There he studied organ with his father, Jean-Baptiste Guilmant, and harmony with Gustave Carulli before going to Brussels for further organ training under Jacques Lemmens. His musical career centered around the organ in the triple capacities of performer, composer and teacher. He was one of the co-founders of the Schola Cantorum and taught his instrument at the Paris Conservatory. Naturally his compositional catalogue consists mostly of works for the organ but there are some vocal works as well.

LOUIS FERDINAND HÉROLD (1791-1833)

Born in Paris. Taught initially by his father, who had been a pupil of C.P.E. Bach, he went on to study at the Paris Conservatory where his teachers included Louis Adam, Charles-Simon Catel and Etienne Méhul. Although his life was short he had a very distinguished career as a composer of operas some of which are revived to this day. The Overture to the opera "Zampa" has always been a pops and band concert mainstay. His instrumental output was mostly limited to works for the piano.

ARTHUR HONEGGER
(1892-1955)

Born in Le Havre to Swiss parents. He spent most of his life in France but always kept his dual French-Swiss citizenship. His musical education began in Paris, continued at the Zurich Conservatory but culminated at the Paris Conservatory where he studied under Charles-Marie Widor, André Gedalge and Vincent d'Indy. He was associated with the group of young composers known as "Les Six" that helped foster modernism in French composition. He was a very prolific composer in practically every genre (including scores for movies and radio) and is most famous for his dramatic choral works such as "Le Roi David" and "Jeanne d'Arc au Bûcher" as well as his Symphonies and shorter orchestral works such as "Rugby" and "Pacific 231."

JACQUES IBERT
(1890-1962)

Born in Paris. He studied at the Paris Conservatory with André Gédalge and Gabriel Fauré. In addition to composing he had a career as an administrator with his most important post being head of the Académie de France of Rome. He two most popular orchestral works are "Éscales" and "Divertissement" but his output was quite large including operas, ballets, film scores and much else for orchestra, chamber groups, solo instruments and voice. Some lesser-known orchestral pieces are his symphonic poem "Noel en Picardie," "Ballade de la Geôle de Reading" and the symphonic scherzo "Féerique."

VINCENT D'INDY (1851-1931)

Born in Paris. As a child prodigy, he studied the piano with Louis Diémer and Antoine-François Marmontel and harmony with Albert Lavignac but initially taught himself composition by studying the scores of his great predecessors as well as various textbooks. Later on he became a pupil of César Franck at the Paris Conservatory. His own academic career was highlighted by his co-founding with Alexandre Guilmant and Charles Bourdes of the Schola Cantorem where he became director and went on to teach composition to, among many others, Erik Satie, Albert Roussel, Albéric Magnard, Arthur Honegger, Darius Milhaud and Joseph Canteloube. He composed operas, chamber, instrumental, vocal and a significant number of large orchestral works that have been well-represented on recordings. Only one of his Symphonies, the early "Jean Hunyade" (1875) has not yet been recorded.

Some other orchestral works include "Jour d'Eté à la Montagne," the symphonic trilogy "Wallenstein," "Tableaux de Voyages," "Poème des Rivages," "Istar Variations" and "Diptyque Méditerranéen."

CHARLES KOEHLIN
(1867-1950)

Born in Paris. At the Paris Conservatory his teachers were André Gédalge, Jules Massenet and Gabriel Fauré. He pursued multiple careers as composer, teacher and writer. With Maurice Ravel and Florent Schmitt he founded the Société Musicale Indépendante whose purpose was to promote the music of contemporary composers. He composed prolifically over his long life in various genres but his catalogue is heavily weighted with orchestral and chamber music. He wrote 2 numbered Symphonies (1911-16, 1943-4) and a "Symphonie d'Hymnes" (1936) that were based on earlier material and there is also an unfinished Symphony in A minor from the 1890's but his orchestral masterpiece is his series of symphonic poems based on Kipling's "Jungle Books."

RENÉ KOERING
(b.1940)

Born in in Andlau, Alsace. He studied piano and oboe in Strasbourg and, on the advice of Pierre Boulez, he went to Darmstadt with Bruno Maderna. After 1962, he devoted himself exclusively to composition. He has written four operas, three string quartets, a concerto for violin and fifteen orchestral works. He has worked as a producer for France Musique and became its director. His earlier Symphonies are Nos. 1 for Bass Clarinet and 17 Instruments, Op. 21 (1974) and 2 as well as a Symphonie Concertante for Violin, Viola and String Orchestra (2003).

JANOS KOMIVES
(1932-2005)

Born in Budapest, Hungary. There he studied composition at the Franz Liszt Conservatory with Zoltán Kodály and Ferenc Farkas as well as conducting with László Somogyi.. He lived in France after the Hungarian Revolution in 1956 where he had careers as conductor composer and director for France-Musique radio. In addition, he was founder and director of the Chatearoux Conservatory. He composed music for the stage as well as orchestral, chamber, instrumental , vocal and choral works.

(b. 1956)

Born in Paris. He was a child prodigy on the piano and composed for that instrument from an early age. He went into the medical profession but continued to enhance his musical skills. Some of his works reflect Jewish subjects such as "Shoah" for clarinet and string quartet. He also composed Concertos for Piano and Violin and "Fraternité" for 14 string instruments.

ÉDOUARD LALO
(1823-1892)

Born in Lille. He studied initially at the Lille Conservatory and later studied violin at the Paris Conservatory with François Antoine Habeneck and composition privately with Joseph Crèvecoeur. At first, he made his musical living as a violinist and teacher but composing would become increasingly important. He composed in various genres and his opera "Le Roi d'Ys" holds a small place on the fringes of the repertoire as does his ballet "Namouna." However, he is most often represented by his various concertos for stringed instruments including his so-called "Symphonie Espagnole." His other major orchestral works were 2 additional unpublished symphonies (no longer extant), Divertissement, Piano Concerto, Cello Concerto, Violin Concerto and Concerto Russe for Violin and Orchestra.

MARCEL LANDOWSKI (1915-1999)

Born in Pont-l'Abbé, Finistère to a highly cultured family. He was taught by a group of illustrious teachers both privately and then at the Paris Conservatory. They included Marguerite Long, Pierre Monteux, Noël Gallon, Henri Büsser and Philippe Gaubert. He pursued the twin careers as composer and administrator holding, among other posts, directorship of the Boulogne-Bilancourt Conservatory, musical director of the Comédie-Française, inspector-general of the Ministries of Cultural Affairs and Education and chancellor of the Institut de France.. Despite all his official capacities, Landowski composed prolifically in every genre. In addition to his Symphonies, his large-scale orchestral works include 2 Piano Concertos, Violin Concerto, Cello Concerto and the symphonic poems "Brumes," "Edina" and "L'Horloge." His Symphony No.5 "Les Lumieres de la Nuit" for chamber orchestra was premiered in 1998.

JEAN MARTINON
(1910-1976)

Born in Lyons. After studying the violin at the Conservatories of Lyons and Paris, he had composition lessons from Albert Roussel and Vincent d'Indy as well as conducting training with Charles Munch and Roger Desormière. After war service and internment by the Germans, he began a brilliant conducting career that featured major posts in France and America. As a composer, he produced works for the theater as well as the concert hall including an opera, ballet and many orchestral, chamber and vocal works. He wrote 4 Symphonies, the unrecorded ones being No. 1 (1934-6) and No. 3 "Irlandais" (1949) as well as a "Symphonette" for Strings, Harp, Piano and Percussion (1935).

ANDRÉ MESSAGER (1853-1929)

Born in Montluçon, Allier. He studied at the Ecole Niedermeyer in Paris where Camille Saint-Saëns was his composition teacher with additional instruction from Gabriel Fauré and Eugène Gigout. In addition to composing, he was very active as a conductor and organist. As a composer he was basically a man of the theater writing ballets, operas and operettas. He is most famous for the ballet "Les Deux Pigeons" and the operetta "Veronique." His few other orchestral works include a "Suite Funabulesque" and "Impressions Orientals."

Symphony in A major (1876)

GEORGES MIGOT (1891-1976)

Born in Levallois, near Paris. Taught the piano as a child, his teachers at the Paris Conservatory were Charles-Marie Widor, André Gedalge, Maurice Emmanuel, Vincent d'Indy, Eugène Gigout and Alexandre Guilmant. An artistic polymath, he excelled at painting and poetry as well as music. He composed prolifically in various genres but specialized in orchestral and chamber music. He wrote 13 numbered Symphonies between 1919 and 1967, a "Petite Symphonie" for Strings (1970), Piano Concerto and much else for orchestra.

Symphony No. 6 for String Orchestra (1944-51)

Roger Delage/Collegium Musicum de l'Universite de Strasbourg
(+ Violin Sonata)
LUMEN LD 3.452 A (LP) (c. 1960)

DARIUS MILHAUD (1892-1974)

Born in Marseille. He took violin lessons as a child before entering the Paris Conservatory where his teachers were Xavier Leroux, Charles-Marie Widor, André Gedalge and Vincent d'Indy. He spent some years in the diplomatic corps and traveled abroad where he absorbed various musical influences and spent the World War II years as an exile in America. As one of "Les Six," he was considered in the forefront of French musical modernism. Perhaps one of the most prolific of 20th century composers with hundreds of works in his catalogue in every conceivable genre, his frequently performed pieces are few. They include the ballets "La Création du Monde" and "Le Boeuf sur le Toit," the "Scaramouche Suite" for 2 Pianos and "Le Carnaval d'Aix" for Piano and Orchestra. It is only in recent years that all of his Symphonies and most of his Concertos have been recorded.

PAUL PARAY
(1886-1979)

Born in Le Tréport, Seine-Maritime Département, Normandy. At the Paris Conservatory his teachers were Xavier Leroux, Georges Caussade, Charles Lenepveu and Paul Vidal. He is chiefly remembered as a brilliant conductor of the French repertoire whose work is preserved by the recordings he made late in life with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. He did not compose prolifically but his Symphonies are supplemented by the ballet "Artémis Troublée," the "Mass for the 500th Anniversary of the Death of Joan of Arc," a "Fantaisie" for Piano and Orchestra and several chamber works.

FRANCIS POULENC
(1899-1963)

Born in Paris. His formal musical training began with piano lessons from Ricardo Viñes. He entered the circle of musicians around Erik Satie and, after service in World War I, had composition lessons from Charles Koechlin. He was part of the informal musical group "Les Six" and was a very accomplished pianist. As a composer he is the last in the line of French composers whose music is enjoyed by the greater musical public. His extensive catalogue encompasses most genres from opera to solo instrumental pieces and his Concertos for 2 Pianos, Harpsichord and Organ, ballets "Les Biches" and "Les Animaux Modèles" and choral "Gloria" are among the most popular of 20th century compositions.

MAURICE RAVEL
(1875-1937)

Born in Ciboure, Basse-Pyrénées. He studied piano as a child and later was trained at the Paris Conservatory initially by Eugène Anthiôme and Charles de Bériot but later on more importantly in counterpoint by André Gédalge and composition by Gabriel Fauré. His musical career was devoted almost exclusively to composition and he excelled at whatever genre he worked in from opera and ballet to wonderful creations for orchestra, instrumental combinations, voice and, especially, the piano. Ravel wrote no symphonies but the ballet "Daphnis et Chloé" is listed here because Ravel called it a "Symphonie Choréographique." His larger orchestral works written for the concert hall are his Piano Concerto in G, Piano Concerto in D for the Left Hand, Rapsodie Espagnole and Boléro. Most of his other famous orchestral pieces are Ravel's own orchestrations of his piano works. Though his music is markedly different from that of Debussy, the two are considered the twin giants of French musical impressionism.

NAPOLÉON-HENRI REBER
(1807-1880)

Born in Mulhouse, Alsace. He studied with Anton Reicha and Jean François Lesueur. He became professor of harmony at the Paris Conservatory in 1851 and then succeeded Fromental Halévy as professor of composition. He composed a ballet, operas, orchestral, chamber and vocal works. His unrecorded Symphonies are Nos. 1 in D minor, 2 in C and 3 in E (all before 1850).

ERNEST REYER
(1823-1909)

Born in Marseilles. He had some musical training in Marseilles and Algiers before studying with his aunt, Louise Farrenc, in Paris. He was an ardent admirer and imitator of Richard Wagner and thus primarily wrote only operas the most famous popular being "Sigurd" and "Salammbô." In fact, the work listed here, despite its title, is essentially an opera as well.

JEAN RIVIER
(1896-1987)

Born in Villemomble, suburban Paris. His musical training, interrupted by service and a long recuperation from World War I, was completed at the Paris Conservatory where his teachers were Maurice Emmanuel, Jean Gallon and Georges Caussade. He was a leading activist in various contemporary music societies and taught at the Paris Conservatory after World War II. His compositions include operas, orchestral, chamber, instrumental and vocal music. His unrecorded Symphonies are No. 1 (1931), No. 6 "Les Présages" (1958) and No. 7 "Les Contrastes" (1971). There are also many concertos and shorter works in his orchestral catalogue.

JOSEPH GUY ROPARTZ
(1864-1955)

Born in Guincamp, Côtes-du-Nord, Brittany. He studied with Théodore Dubois and Jules Massenet at the Paris Conservatory and had lessons in organ and composition with César Franck who was his main influence. He made his living as a conductor and became the director of the Academy of Nancy and later the Strasbourg Conservatory. He wrote an opera, ballets, incidental music and a vast body of works for orchestra, chamber groups, solo instruments and voice. Some of his other orchestral works are the symphonic poems "La Cloche des Morts," "Les Landes," "La Chasse de Prince Arthur," the suite "Dimanche Breton" and a Concerto for Orchestra.

ALBERT ROUSSEL
(1869-1937)

Born in Toucoing, Département du Nord. After a naval career he began the serious study of music in his mid-twenties with Eugène Gigout before entering the Schola Cantorum for instruction by Vincent d'Indy who gave him a job on the staff. As instructor of counterpoint some of his pupils were Erik Satie, Paul Le Flem and Edgard Varèse. For the theatre his most important works are the opera

"Padmâvatî," the ballets "Bacchus et Ariane," "Le Festin de l'Araignée" and "Aenéas" and the incidental music to "Le Marchand de Sable qui Passe" while his other orchestral pieces include a Piano Concerto, Cello Concerto, Suite in F major, Concerto for Orchestra and "Rapsodie Flamande."

HENRI SAUGUET
(1901-1989)

Born in Bordeaux his original name was Jean Pierre Poupard. After some initial training in Bordeaux he studied with Joseph Canteloube in Montauban and Charles Koechlin in Paris. He became attached to the circle of Erik Satie known as the École d'Arcueil. He composed operas, ballets and many orchestral, chamber and vocal works. Some of his other major orchestral works were 3 Piano Concertos and "Mélodie Concertante" for Cello and Orchestra.

FLORENT SCHMITT
(1870-1958)

Born in Blâmont, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Lorraine. After initial studies at the Nancy Conservatory, he entered the Paris Conservatory where his teachers were Théodore Dubois, Albert Lavignac, André Gédalge, Jules Massenet and Gabriel Fauré, the last two for composition. He was an academic (head of the Lyons Conservatory) and influential music critic but most of all a very prolific composer who produced music to the very end of his long life. His enormous catalogue does include some stage music notably ballets and incidental music but most of his work is for orchestra, chamber groups, solo instruments and voices. His most popular works are the suite from the ballet "La Tragédie de Salomé" and "Psaume XLVII" for Soprano, Chorus and Orchestra.

Symphonie Concertante for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 82 (1928-31)
