

The Malcolm Arnold Society

The Malcolm Arnold Society:

- Promotes and sponsors performances of the music of Sir Malcolm Arnold at both an amateur and professional level;
- Issues a quarterly newsletter (Beckus, named after Arnold's comedy overture), containing a concert diary, members letters, archive material, reviews of CDs and DVDs, news of special events and other occasional features;
- Has links with publishing companies and broadcasting bodies, giving reviews of recordings and up-to-date information on forthcoming performances at home and abroad;
- Offers members special discounts on CDs, DVDs, books and scores featuring Arnold and his music;
- Arranges functions and events for members, including at the annual Malcolm Arnold Festival in Northampton, the composer's home town;
- Provides a source of reference for those who wish to know more about the composer and his music, both for enjoyment and academic study; to this purpose an annual Malcolm Arnold Journal is planned in the near future.
